STREETER & RIKER

This label has often been cataloged with bogus stamps. It appears to be an advertising label for Streeter & Riker, a New York company. The label has a stamp-like appearance, with a printed "cancel" of two thick lines continuing off the right side of the design. The central image is that of a woman, Liberty, copied from the 1873 US postal cards (Scott UX1).

In 1875, Streeter & Riker applied for a trademark for their polishing compound, "Golden Polisher". This connects with the partially obscured word on the right side of the design, which most likely read "POLISHER"

These labels are rare. One known example illustrated in Perry's Pat Paragraphs and Lyon's Identifier for Carriers, Locals, Fakes, Forgeries & Bogus Posts of the United States is cancelled with a "PENNY POST" circular datestamp. The example featured below is uncancelled (excluding the printed "cancel" in the design).

No. 2721. STREETER and RIKER, of New York-N.Y., for "A polishing compound."—Application filed 23rd June, 1875.
"Words Golden Polisher."

EXCERPT FROM THE COMMISSIONERS OF PATENTS' JOURNAL AUGUST 10, 1875

Trow's New York City Directory for 1876 lists Streeter & Riker at 351 E. 29th street under the business of "soap".
